Most Food Waste Happens At Home

We throw away good food (and money) mostly because no one taught us how to keep it.

60%

of the world's food waste happens in homes

THE SCALE

1B+

meals' worth of food wasted every single day

$762

wasted per person per year (US)

Nobody taught us

Confusing date labels alone trash 3.5M+ tons a year (US)

WHY IT HAPPENS

Out of Sight

Food hides in the back, so we forget and buy again

DEMO

Where Freshly Goes From Here

Location-Aware Nudges

Reminders that show up where they matter. At a restaurant, see what's about to expire at home. At a store, get suggestions that pair with what's already in your fridge.

Ask Leeky

A food storage assistant you can type to or talk to. Ask "can I freeze cream cheese?" and get answers from FDA and USDA data, hands-free.

Local Shops & Markets

Guided local shopping recommendations from nearby grocers and farmers markets, sized to match actual eating pace while shops get anonymous insights to stock smarter.

Freshly Waste Wrapped

A shareable monthly recap that turns sustainability into conversations: comparing money saved, top mastered foods, and your worst waste offender with your friends.

Visual Freshness Model

Snap any fruit or vegetable to predict its remaining shelf life in real time, using visual cues like color and ripeness to adjust expiration date automatically.
